

Short Description of Messalina Kitiara of Regina

A human woman in her mid fifties of average height. Her hair is usually kept very short and while originally dark brown is beginning to grey. Though still in relatively good physical shape she cannot deny her age and her face shows its share of wrinkles. Her almost perpetual frown doesn't necessarily help in this regard. By the way she moves it is quite obvious that she has spend most of her life on starships and is used to operating in various G-environments. She also seems confident and sure of herself but she does not give the impression of wanting to get to know other people. She is neither attractive nor ugly and would probably not be noticed particularly in any crowd of people.

Unless the occasion calls for something more formal she usually wears a coverall with lost of pockets filled with an assortment of tools and gadgets.
